WANTED: Newsletter Editor

The Colorado Chess informant is in need of a qualified, interested newsletter editor. This person needs to be able to make a 15—20 hour commitment on a quarterly basis to solicit articles, write articles, edit articles, publish and distribute the newsletter. The person needs to meet clearly defined deadlines and can prioritize. The ability to minimize crisis in other areas of one's life is very helpful also. The candidate will likely work in tandem with interim editor Randy Reynolds at first.

The person should be a regular chess player familiar with Colorado Chess. The person needs to be proficient in computers and specifically Microsoft Publisher or a similar program. The person should also know how to use a chess program like Fritz to create chess positions that should be included into articles.

This person needs to be able to provide a balanced perspective to various, competing, diverse interests. Individuals with an "agenda" need not apply. This person also needs the ability to say "No" when necessary.

If you are interested in learning more about this opportunity, contact State President Todd Bardwick at 303-770-6696 or at tbardwick@yahoo.com.

ALL-STAR CLOSER BRAD LIDGE PLAYS CHESS

By Todd Bardwick

For years, I have tried to find professional athletes that play chess (the thinking process learned through chess facilitates the mental aspect of any sport) because big sports stars that play chess help improve the overall image of the royal game.

Major League Baseball has been a big challenge in my quest...the game of choice of MLB players is Texas Hold'em.

My first baseball column came from an unexpected source...my mother! Earlier this year, my mom called me and said that one of her lady friends from church had a son, Brad Lidge, who played for the Houston Astros and also played chess.

Since I was a few years removed from playing Fantasy Baseball, I hadn't heard of Brad and didn't know at the time that he was one of the best closers in baseball.

A fellow Cherry Creek High graduate, Brad told me he didn't even make the varsity baseball team at Creek until his senior year, when his fastball jumped from the 80 mph range into the 90's.

Drafted by the Houston Astros in 1998, Brad got the closer job in 2004. In the 2004 playoffs, Brad had a great season by breaking the National League strikeout record for relievers and pitched well under the pressure of the NLCS against the St. Louis Cardinals to become one of the top closers in baseball.

Brad says his best pitches are his slider and fastball, which occasionally clock out at 100 mph. His third pitch is a split-finger fastball.

Having been taught how to play chess by his father when he was seven, Brad has played the game throughout high school and college.

"The game of baseball between pitcher and hitter sets up like a game of chess."

Brad is working on popularizing chess with his Astros teammates. He plays chess regularly with teammates Lance Berkman, Morgan Ensberg, and Brad Ausmus. All four are pretty evenly matched at chess. It was really cool to receive a baseball in mail from Brad last summer, signed by the Astros' Chess team.

Brad compares chess and baseball, "The game of baseball between pitcher and hitter sets up like a game of chess in that you have to anticipate several moves or pitches ahead to set up your opponent."

"In chess, the goal is to capture pieces to make your way toward the king. In baseball, you are capturing outs to make your way toward a win for your team".

After interviewing Brad on the phone for my chess column in the Rocky Mountain News, we met after the Rockies game on June 29 (when these photos were taken) near the visitor's locker room at Coors Field.

2005 was Brad's first year making the All-Star Team, and he didn't disappoint the National League fans: he pitched the 7th inning, throwing 11 pitches of which 9 were strikes, as he struck out the side.

The Astros had a great comeback season this year after starting 15-30 and the chess players on the team were instrumental in helping the team win their first National League Championship. Unfortunately, they didn't fare well against the White Sox in the World Series...maybe next year.

A Message from the CSCA Board to All CSCA Membership

We are sure most of you are aware of and have been greatly perturbed by the seeming disappearance of the Colorado Chess Informant. This notice is to inform you that the Informant has not been discontinued, and it is our hope that this magazine will continue to thrive through the generous literary contribution of its membership.

We regret the length of time that has passed between issues of the Colorado Chess Informant. We know this has been a source of great frustration for many of you and are sorry for the consternation caused. The last two CSCA members who volunteered to serve as editors were unable to meet the set deadlines. It was unfortunate, but it serves as a testimony that the position of editor and its accompanying commitments is not easy to fulfill.

We wish to express our renewed commitment to the timely delivery of the magazine, which is the primary reason for moving its editorship into the ranks of the CSCA board members for now. This ought to serve as a sign that we are dedicated to keeping this magazine as part of the rich tradition that is Colorado chess. Eventually, it is our intent to recruit a new editor from the general CSCA membership and we welcome members interested in the position to contact any one of us, as listed in the front cover of this issue. We welcome all such interest, but note that special consideration will be made to insure applicants are able to commit and deliver to a deadline.

In the meantime, we hope you enjoy this latest issue of the Colorado Chess Informant.

Sincerely,

The Colorado State Chess Association Board Members

Denver Chess Club appoints officers for 2006

At their Annual Meeting on January 3rd, the Denver chess club elected officers for the 2006 year.

This year's President is Bruce Bain. Bruce was last year's club Vice-President and currently serves as the Treasurer for the Colorado State Chess Association.

The Vice-President for 2006 is Joe Haines. He is the immediate past President of the club.

This year's secretary is J.C. MacNeil. JC is also a Past President of the Denver Chess Club.

The treasurer for the Denver Chess Club for 2006 is Richard Monroe. This is his first position as an officer for the club.

Tyler Hughes has been appointed as the Youth Representative to the board.

There were approximately 30 individuals present for the meeting including current CSCA President, Todd Bardwick.

CSCA Membership Pricing Clarification

Family memberships in CSCA can be purchased if there is someone in the family who has a regular (or junior/senior) paid membership. Only one magazine will be delivered to the address. The cost to additional family members at the same address for a family membership is $12, or $7 for a junior or senior. (This is a correction from the most recent Informant magazine.)

Interim Editor Takes Over Informant

By Randy Reynolds

Hi, CSCA members. I wanted to personally thank Joe Haines for the bulk of the material for this Informant. I was preparing for creating an entire issue from scratch within a week, but now I'm glad that didn't have to happen.

I wanted to invite everyone to submit articles to the Informant. This doesn't just apply to the master class players, because we're ALL Colorado chess players and this magazine is about all of us. Even scholastic players — if you have a game from the recent scholastic championships that was interesting, please send it in! It'll go in the next magazine and you'll be FAMOUS!!

Thanks, everyone! Please send any articles and/or games to randy\_teyana@msn.com

Hughes - Ramirez holds Match at DCC in November

Tyler Hughes and Robert Ramirez held a four game Match at the Denver Chess Club Tuesday night meetings during the month of November.

The match was sponsored by the Denver Chess Club who put up part of the prize money.

The match was a game in 75 minutes with a 5 second delay.

The match was won by Tyler Hughes 2.5 - 1.5. Robert got off to a fast start winning 1.5/2.0 points in the first two games.

Tyler won the last two games to take the match. If the match would have been tied after 4 games, the players would have had a blitz game on the last Tuesday of the month to determine the winner.

Book Review : "Curse of Kirsan"

By Bruce Bain

"Curse of Kirsan" by Sarah Hurst, paperback, ISBN 1888690151, $19.95 2002

At the age of 20, in 1993, British Journalist Sarah Hurst decided to renew her childhood acquaintance with the royal game, leading her to pursue interviews with Garry Kasparov, and other living legacies.

World turmoil, or war may have prevented their ascent to a professional title, but the collections of their games and opponents read like a "WHO'S-WHO" of chess.

Hurst writes thoroughly of the career of Alexander Alekhine in one of her most illuminative chapters. However the title is a bit cryptic.

Unless one is familiar with the political peculiarities of the world governing body of chess championships, FIDE, the name "Kirsan" will not register. It refers to then FIDE president, Kirsan Ilyumzhinov, the millionaire dictator of the tiny Buddhist nation of Kalmykia, located near Chechnya on the Russian Steppe.

Amidst a swirl of human rights abuses, and even implication in the murder of a Kalmykian journalist, Hurst asks the question, "How did this man become President of the governing body of world chess?"

Sarah Hurst interviews Andre Lillienthal, Laszlo Polgar, Ken Whyld, Mike Basman, and writes of the growing prominence of the Chinese in professional chess, an endeavor in which politics sometimes is a factor.

What appealed most about this book, was that author Sarah Hurst is able to cover the human side. More aptly stated, Hurst impresses with her ability to make moral distinctions, a faculty that is much appreciated in chess players.

It is not surprising that her views seem to reflect those of new USCF President, Bill Goichberg.

THE CHESS DETECTIVE: THE HAZARDS OF GRABBING PAWNS

By NM Todd Bardwick

"© Reprinted by permission of the author, the United States Chess Federation, and Chess Life Magazine"

Most beginners place an overemphasis on material gains. The chess master must weigh material considerations with the other types of advantages: king safety, piece activity, pawn structure, and space.

Grabbing pawns may give the player a material advantage, but he loses time while his opponent gains tempi that can be used to increase piece activity and maybe even trap the piece that grabbed the pawn.

Irving Chernev once said, "Pawn-grabbing with the queen, at the expense of development, is always perilous."

Consider this position from the famous game between Mikhail Botvinnik and Rudolf Spielmann from Moscow in 1935.

Spielmann

Botvinnik

after 7.cxd5

7...Qxb2? Black decides to grab the "poisoned" b-pawn. The queen is now in grave danger, behind enemy lines. 8.Rc1 Nb4 9.Na4 Qxa2 The queen has only two choices. 9...Qa3 10.Rc3 Qxa2 11.Bc4 also traps the lady 10.Bc4 Bg4 11.Nf3 Bxf3 12.gxf3 Resigns After 12...Qa3 13.Rc3, black can save the queen by sacrificing his knight on c2 or d3 with check, but this leaves him a piece down with a lost game.

The next position occurred in Round 4 of the 2000 New York Open.

IM Mikhail Zlotnikov

FM Renard Anderson
after 7.Nd5

First lets pick up the clues and make observations about the position. White has a lead in development and a little more space. His king and queen are lined up on the same diagonal and he has to be wary of being pinned by the black bishop. White would like to play Nc7+, forking the king and rook. The b2 pawn is hanging; dare black take it with the bishop?

Zlotnikov decides to go after the "poisoned" b-pawn with 7... Bxb2?

The game continued, 8.Rb1 Qa3 8...Bg7 runs into 9.Be3 Qa3 (9...Qc6 10.Bb5) 10.Rb3 (protecting against the pin threat of ...Bc3) 10...Qxa2 11.Nc7+ 9.c3 Trapping the bishop and attacking it a second time. 9...h6 10.Be3 e6 11.Nc7+ Kd7 12.Nb5! 12.Nxa8? allows 12...Bxc3 12...Resigns

Always beware that grabbing extra material costs time and can result in getting the attacking piece trapped.

Selected games by the late Chris Hendrickson published in the Colorado Chess Informant and its ancestor, the CSCA Bulletin - prepared by Richard Buchanan. Unless otherwise credited, notes are by me as magazine Editor or by Chris.

Chris Hendrickson (1660) - Charles Moore (1760) Appreciation Open, Boulder 1979. Notes by Curtis Carlson: English
 1.c4 Nf6 2.Nc3 d5 3.cxd5 Nxd5 4.g3 g6 5.Bg2 Nxc3 6.bxc3 c5 7.Rb1 Qd7? (A terrible move. 7...Nc6 was as good as anything. White wants to keep her KB; Black's Q should go to c7.) 8.e3 Bg7 9.Ba3 c4 10.Ne2 0-0 11.0-0 Na6 12.Nf4 Rd8 13.Qe2! (Black's game is already in ruins.) 13...Rb8 14.Qxc4 Qxd2 15.Bxe7 Rd7 (Black must have some death wish for his QB!) 16.Nd5! (Nimzovich would have loved the centralizing effect of White's pieces.) 16...b5 17.Qb3 Rdb7 18.Rbd1 Qe2 19.Nf4 (Threatening not so much the queen but 20 Rd8+; the game is over.) 19...Be6 20.Bxb7 Qxf1+ 21.Kxf1 Bxb3 22.axb3 Nc7 (Sadly enough for Black, the bishop is not hanging.) 23.Rd8+ Rxd8 24.Bxd8 Ne6 25.Nxe6 fxe6 26.Ba5 (See what a few lessons from Colorado's #1 player can do! A masterly game.) 1-0

Chris Hendrickson (1785) - Larry Duke (1725) 1980 Colorado Open Notes by Todd Bardwick : English
 1.c4 f5 2.Nc3 Nf6 3.g3 e5 4.Bg2 Bc5 5.e3 Nc6 6.Nge2 0-0 7.0-0 a6 8.d4 Ba7?! (In some lines this bishop is way out of play, especially if White can build a pawn chain supporting a pawn at c5. This bishop is often necessary in defense of the kingside.) 9.b3 d6 10.Ba3 exd4 11.exd4 Bd7 (With a pawn on f5, it is difficult to find a good square for the QB.) 12.Re1 Kh8 13.Qd2 Qc8?! (The idea is difficult to ascertain. Note how discoordinated Black's pieces are as White continues to develop to active squares.) 14.Rad1 h6? (All this does is weaken Black's kingside.) 15.c5 b5 16.b4 Rb8 17.Nf4 Kh7 18.Nfd5 (Perhaps 18 Ncd5 is stronger, so that White can play Bb2 and a3 to secure the queenside (so that the queen defends b4, allowing this plan).) 18...Qd8 19.Re2 Re8 20.Rd1 Rxe2 21.Rxe2 a5 22.f4 axb4 23.Nxb4 Na5 24.c6 Nc4 25.Qd3 Nxa3 26.cxd7 Qxd7 27.Bc6 Qc8 28.Ncd5 Ne4 29.Ne7 Qf8 30.Nxf5 Nf6 31.Ne7+ g6 32.Qxg6+ Kh8 33.Qd3 Qg7 34.Nf5 Qg6 35.Re7 Rg8 36.Re6 Bxd4+ 37.Qxd4 Qxf5 38.Qxf6+ Qxf6 39.Rxf6 Kg7 40.Re6 1-0

Chris scored 3.5 - 0.5 in the 1984 Benjamin Gerash Memorial to clear second place behind Ray Haskins, ahead of 3 masters and 11 experts.

David Barnett (2060) - Chris Hendrickson (1735): Robatsch
 1.d4 g6 2.c4 Bg7 3.Nc3 d6 4.e4 e5 5.d5 Ne7 6.Be2 0-0 7.Nf3 Bg4 8.Bg5 h6 9.Bh4 Nd7 10.h3 Bxf3 11.Bxf3 a6 12.Rc1 Kh7 13.Qc2 f5 14.exf5 gxf5 15.g4 Bf6 16.Bxf6 Rxf6 17.gxf5 Nxf5 18.Be4 Qf8 19.b4 Kh8 20.Bxf5 Rxf5 21.Ne4 Rf4 22.Rg1 Qf5 23.Ng3 Qxc2 24.Rxc2 Rg8 25.Ne2? Chris Hendrickson (1735) - Jack Hursch (2035) Notes by Jack Hursch with some added comments by Chris.: English
 1.c4 (I bet she's been studying John Watson's books on the English.) 1...e5 2.Nc3 f5 3.g3 Nf6 4.Bg2 Bc5? (Well, it seemed to me that barring an all-out boring positional struggle, the only way to get the kind of game I wanted was to stick my head in the sand and imagine I was playing a King's Gambit Reversed.) 5.e3 (Reality rears its ugly head.) 5...Nc6 6.Nge2

e4? (Wasting a tempo, but I didn't want to face a P on d4.) 7.d4 exd3 8.Qxd3 d6 (Black has a miserable position; nothing to do but wait and hope.) 9.b3 0-0 10.0-0 Bd7 11.Nf4 Ne5 12.Qd1 Rb8 (I had intended to play 12...c6 guarding d5, but decided to go straight for the break with ...b5.) 13.Ncd5 c6 14.b4! cxd5 15.Bxd5+ Kh8 16.bxc5 dxc5 17.Bb2 Qe8 (To back the break at b5, defend the N at e5, and avoid getting hit by the white knight should it ever get to d5.) 18.Bxe5? (I cannot say for certain that this was a bad move, but I was beginning to feel a lot better about my position.) 18...Qxe5 19.Bg2? (Letting me break at b5. Maybe 19 a4 was better.) 19...b5! (Now I was beginning to really like my position.) 20.cxb5?! Bxb5 21.Re1 Rfd8! (I thought I surely must be winning. My pieces are dominating the board.) 22.Qc2 g5? (Greedy for a quick win, I weakened my K-side horribly. But how to proceed? Maybe 22...Ne4.) 23.Nh3 (Now the family check at f7 is in the air and if 23...h6 there is a similar horrible threat at g6 after 24 f4 gxf4 25 Nxf4.) 23...Bd3 24.Qa4 (On 22 Nxf4, Qxa1 is fatal. - Chris) 24...g4 25.Nf4 (25 Ng5 is interesting: 25...Kg7 (25...Rd7? 26 Qxd7!) 26 e4! gets crazy.) 25...Be4 26.Bxe4 Nxe4 27.Qxa7 Ng5

(To prevent 28 Qf7. I was already swimming in variations like 28 Red1 Nf3+ and if 29 Kg2 Qe4 or if 29 Kh1 Rd2 30 Rxd2 Qxa1+ 31 Kg2 Qg1 mate.) 28.Kh1 Nh3? (I was hoping for 29 Nxf3 Qe4+ 30 Kg1 gxf3 and White must be mated.) 29.Qf7! (The "new" Chris appears again. Now both Black and White are weak on the back rank.) 29...Nxf2+ (If Q checks, 30 Ng2. - Chris) 30.Kg1 Nd3 31.Nxd3 Rxd3 32.Rab1 Rdd8 (If 32...Rxb1, 33 Qf8 mate. - Chris) 33.Rxb8 Rxb8 34.a4 Qc3 35.Kf1 Qd3+ 36.Kg1 Qd6 37.Qxf5 Rf8 38.Qxg4 Qc6 39.Rd1 c4 40.Qd4+ (The queens go off next move.) 1-0

Alan Piper (2210) - Chris Hendrickson (1940) 1984 US Masters Open Notes by John Watson : French 1.e4 (In the next game, Chris demonstrated the great improvement possible when one gets away from me as one's teacher.) 1...e6 2.d4 d5 3.Nc3 Bb4 4.a3 Bxc3+ 5.bxc3 dxe4 6.Qg4 Nf6 7.Qxg7 Rg8 (I did show her this much, anyway.) 8.Qh6 Rg6 9.Qd2 c5 10.Bb2 (10 Ne2 is more accurate, in view of 10...Nc6 11 dxc5! with a slight White advantage.) 10...Nc6 11.Ne2? (Now I want to play 27 f6 right away - in fact, I wrote it down - but if I do there are dangerous traps and checks. For example, 27 f6 Rxf6 28
Qxh7+ Kf8 29 Rxf6+ Qxf6 looks like I might win her rook, but the queen check on f4 has got to be dangerous and may lead to a perpetual check. So I opted for caution.) 27.Rg2 Nxa4 (She can't do this!
But what else?) 28.f6!
Rxf6 (Forced) 29.Qxh7+ Kf8
30.Qxg7+ Ke8 31.Rxf6 1-0

Chess for Beginners Taught through CFU

By Bruce Bain

The "Chess for Beginners" class, taught by DCC through Colorado Free University has graduated over 82 students since the first class in September 2004.

The weekly hour and a half classes cover Chess History, Basic Piece Moves, Castling, En Passant, Forks, Pins, Skewers, Double Threats and Algebraic Notation, the Chess Clock, and Openings.

The class was offered on Friday nights for the past year, and in 2005 the class is offered on Sunday afternoon as well.

The classes cost $20.00, and the students pay a $12.00 materials fee, for which they receive a workbook, a small "analysis" size chess set, and photocopies of sample games.

These classes help publicize and promote the Denver Chess Club, introducing many people to the world of chess, and the benefits offered through new friendships and the fundamental fact expressed by Siegbert Tarrasch: "Chess, like love, like music, makes men happy!"

CO Chess Survey: A Memorial Day Afternoon with Allan Ufer

By Paul Grimm

Lately, I've been spending more of my free time this year racing and training for various athletic endeavors and less time playing chess. However, Memorial Day Weekend was pretty much a chess weekend similar to so many chess weekends I've enjoyed in the last 6 years in Colorado. It was nice to sit on my butt, rest my legs for a weekend, and see some old chess friends.

I wrapped up my Memorial Day Weekend on Monday with a visit to see Allan Ufer in Colorado Springs. I had heard several months earlier that Allan's health wasn't doing too well and he was hospitalized or in a long-care treatment facility. What better way to end the long weekend by visiting with one of Colorado's most active chess veterans.

Allan Ufer would be instantly recognized by anyone as one of Colorado's chess regulars. You'd normally see him wearing striped suspenders pushing a walker, wearing a patriotic USA-themed hat with stars, stripes, red, white, and blue. Finding Allan napping on any available couch between rounds would not be out of the ordinary. Oh yeah, and his walker would have those bright yellow Spaulding tennis balls cut out and wrapped around the leg ends so as to provide a smoother "ride" as Allan pushes his walker across the floor. I'm assuming Spaulding is his favorite brand—that's one question I forgot to ask him Monday afternoon.

"Teach the kids chess — it's so good for their brains."

— Allan Ufer

However, I did get to ask him many questions about his chess career, his background, and how he ended up in Colorado. Even though his health has not been the greatest lately, he still had a sparkle in his eye and that "gosh, jolly-shucks" sense of humor that only someone from the countryside would have.

Allan was born on June 29th, 1934 in New Jersey. He was one of three kids. Allan learned how to play chess during his high school days in the early 1950's. This was a time before Sputnik and the space age. This was way before the Internet, ICC, and Fritz. This was a time when study of chess came by reading a book full of descriptive notation in front of a small analysis board. And that's exactly what Allan did.

He was the only kid in his entire family to take on a liking for the game. Allan's other major activity in high school was playing offense and defense for his high school football team. Before chess became a major hobby in his life, I was impressed to learn Allan was a quarterback and halfback on a 10-1 state championship team for the Fortley High School Bridgemen.

He graduated from high school in May 1952 and didn't play chess again until after marriage in 1956. Unfortunately, he quickly ran out of time for the game since he was drafted into the US Army on a 2-year enlistment in 1957 between the Korean and Vietnam Wars.

Allan spent the next 2 years serving our nation as an infantryman, stationed mostly in Germany. He told me about the "Army training" he received when learning how to drive an M59 armored personnel carrier. He literally had to learn by the seat of his pants with only the guidance of his sergeant on how to maneuver the multi-ton behemoth over the West German countryside hills.

I had to chuckle when he told me the story about driving his armored vehicle over a hill too quickly. With a squad of soldiers riding in the back, he proceeding the take the half-track "airborne" and all occupants got to experience a little zero-gravity before crashing on their back-ends. I instantly had this vision of 8 to 10 soldiers with their weapons and equipment strewn across the floor, like a chess set dropped from a table. ♪

On Allan's return from Europe, he was given just a few hours to tour London. He bought a small, wooden-peg chess set that he hoped to use in his life after the Army.

Upon his return to the USA, Allan settled down in New Jersey working for the telephone company. He made time for chess, joining the Dumont Chessmates in Bergen County. He also took up correspondence chess, which at the time only cost two cents per post card. "I once played up to 24 games at the same time," Allan told me with a nostalgic tone. "I ended up playing around 200 games of correspondence chess back then."

Allan's over-the-board rating started around 600, based on whatever rating system the USCF was using at that time. "I had a major break-through in understanding when I passed 1000. Also, finding out how to play women and losing to a woman was a big thing then."

So Allan studied books using his small wooden analysis set and tested his understanding at the Dumont Chessmates Club and on the job ("I did a lot of stuff on company time," Allan confessed; I smiled as I find myself doing "a lot" on company time too! Nice to see some things never change.)

Before he knew it, Allan was catching up with the learning curve. By the late 1960's he was unofficial chess champion of the Hackensack Central Office, his work place. He became so active with the Dumont Club he was elected Vice President in 1971 and eventually became President for several years. He won the club championship 2 years in a row and netted a $10 first-place prize in his first tournament victory.

When the interview resumes, Allan explains that he fell victim to all the usual "opening cheap shots" that everyone learns when introduced to chess. But in time, he learned these traps himself, and then some. He even started beating those women!

After 27 years with the New Jersey Phone Company, Allan retired in December 1992 and moved to Colorado soon afterwards. Of all places, why he moved to Colorado is a mystery, but in the end, it really doesn't matter. Why do any of us do what we do in life?

Allan started playing in the Colorado Springs Chess Club where he met other Colorado chess regulars such as Dean Brown, Buck Buchanan, Kathy Schneider, and others. Since 1994, Allan has played in a whopping 266 rated events. Although his average rating has dropped from the mid-1400's to around 1100 or 1200 in recent years, Mr. Ufer can still surprise stronger players from time to time with a sneaky tactic or two.

I know what I'm talking about; I've personally been up-ended by the squirrely Ufer-Meister three times in the 14 games we've played, including one particularly memorable G/30 at the Hillside Fundraiser in 2003 where I rejected Allan's offer to use his time-delay clock thinking to myself "I won't need time-delay, I'm gonna have Allan whipped before time even becomes a factor!" Ha!—famous last thoughts and the laugh was on me—I ran out of time in a basic end game!

Allan's most memorable game in Colorado was beating 1700-rated Virgil McGuire.

Allan's favorite Colorado tournament location is Manitou Springs and his favorite tournament director is long-time contributor Buck Buchanan. One of his most memorable chess events was winning a wooden, red and white Staunton Chess set at a Denker Fundraiser raffle in Denver several years back. "Unfortunately, it got too heavy to carry around," Allan laments.

As we reach the end of my visit, I ask Allan if he has any closing remarks. "Teach the kids chess—it's so good for their brains. And teach them to be clean in the tournaments. Sportsmanship is more important than winning."

What a fitting note to end my Memorial Day afternoon on! Allan's a winner in the great game of life, regardless of any chess rating or lifetime win/loss record.

Allan Ufer passed away on 10 July 05 and a memorial service was held in Manitou Springs. His red-and white-lacquered House of Staunton Chess set may yet be auctioned off at a future tournament to support scholastic chess—just as Allan would have wanted.

For more of the tribute to Allan Ufer, go to page 23 for a reprint of the Colorado Springs' Gazette article on Allan Ufer and the memorial chess tournament held in his honor.

Annotated games from this tournament will appear in the next issue in July.

At this point Brian claimed a win on time. The clock showed that Philipp had used more than two hours to make his forty moves. The situation was complicated by the fact that the clock had not put on the display it is supposed to do when the time runs out. But earlier in the game an illegal move had been made and retracted, and another move made instead. So the clock "thought" that the fortieth move was past and gone, and just clicked over into the secondary time control. Because the clock showed that beyond question the two hours had been exceeded, the game was declared a win for Black. 0-1

Late eccentric honored with chess tourney Manitou man was unforgettable

By DEEDEE CORRELL THE GAZETTE

[Editor's note: This is a reprint of The Gazette's article on the Allan Ufer memorial tournament, which took place on Jan. 7th. Crosstables are listed on pages 18-19. This article is reprinted with permission of The Gazette.]

Anyone who ever tried driving through a Manitou Springs crosswalk while pedestrians were still making their way to the other side probably remembers Allan Ufer as the old man pounding his cane on the back of their car.

Anyone who frequents the Manitou Avenue strip probably remembers him as the whitehaired man in his trademark suspenders, making his way from store to store to say hello.

Anyone who plays chess knew Ufer as the aficionado whose life revolved around the game.

"He played whenever he could," said Richard Buchanan, Ufer's friend and the treasurer of the Colorado Springs Chess Club.

The club will hold a tournament Jan. 7 in memory of the 71-year-old who died in July of diabetes.

In Manitou Springs, Ufer was as well-known for his eccentricities as he was for his constant presence.

"Al would pop in and out of all of the shops in town. He was quite the social bee," said Bud Ford, former mayor and another friend of Ufer's.

A native of New Jersey, Ufer moved here about a decade ago after retiring from a telephone company. He divided his time between socializing and playing chess. Every day, he put on a tie and suspenders and sometimes a colorful hat, such as his giant Mad Hatter hat with rotating lights.

Then he made the rounds, chatting with employees, offering to help out.

"He'd come in and help sand things," said Ford, who manufactures musical instruments at the Dulcimer Shop. "He really enjoyed helping out, but he didn't want to do anything for more than half an hour."

But Ufer always made time for his pet hobby — taking after the motorists who dared drive through crosswalks while pedestrians were in them.

"He walked with two canes the last couple of years. I must have glued his canes together half a dozen times. He'd smash them on the cars that wouldn't stop," Ford said. "He also was fond of throwing water bottles at them."

Ufer's other love was chess.

"He loved the game. He put a lot of energy into it," said Buchanan, who often drove Ufer to tournaments because Ufer didn't have a car.

Ufer spent nearly every weekend traveling to chess tournaments and every Tuesday night at the Colorado Springs chess club.

He enjoyed lightening his opponents' wallets.

"If you decided to play Al for money, it was a good chance you'd go home with an empty wallet," Ford said.

The tournament will be held Jan. 7 at the Manitou Springs City Hall, 606 Manitou Ave.

It includes a competition for experienced tournament players, with a prize fund of $1,400, as well as one for community players.

Registration is 8 to 8:45 a.m. for rated players and 8 to 9:45 a.m. for community tournament participants.

For more information, call Dean Brown at 573-5176 or visit www.colorado-chess.com and click on the "upcoming tournaments" link.

Anyone who wishes to donate to the prize fund may contact Bud Ford at the Dulcimer Shop, 740 Manitou Ave.
